More Children, More Pay.
Bryan Shocked the Ticker.
Taxing the Coffin.

By Arthur Brisbane

Secretary Wilbur, with President Coolidge's approval, of course, will transfer the base of the navy's rigid dirigibles, Los Angeles and Shenandoah, from Lakehurst, N. J., to San Diego, Cal.

There are two good reasons.

First, the climate of California offers the ideal all year round climate for flying experiments. San Diego is to be the center of the nation's flying activities, and the greatest air base in the world.

Second, our fleet will remain more and more on the Pacific coast. The Pacific ocean is the most important, as well as the biggest body of water on earth.

Its control means to the nations now what control of the Mediterranean meant in the days of Carthage and old Rome, and the Atlantic ocean later.

A new wage idea comes from the coal miners of South Wales. They would pay a workman in proportion to the size of his family. Thus, if a man unmarried got five shillings, the married man would get one shilling additional and an extra allowance for the first, second, third and fourth child.

The suggestion comes NOT from a labor union, but from the men that own the coal mines in South Wales.

They are intelligent men, for the problem of modern industry and the industrial kings is TO MAKE INDUSTRY AND WORK ATTRACTIVE, not to squeeze men down to the lowest wage scale and drive them the largest possible number of hours.

There is plenty of wealth below and above ground and in the brain of man to provide richly and generously for the entire human race. But as yet intelligence is content when it can get too much for itself, and willing to get it by forcing others to take TOO LITTLE.

Wall street remembers W. J. Bryan and a shock like that of a conger eel that he once administered to the stock ticker.

It was in July, 1896, and Bryan's "Cross of Gold" speech was that shock. It nominated Bryan for the presidency and knocked all the important stocks in Wall street down 10 to 15 points.

The recent nomination of Mr. Davis did not have that effect.

Senator Norris will fight to retain the national taxes on inherited wealth, now very heavy.

President Coolidge believes those taxes should be abolished or greatly modified.

You can attack or support inheritance taxation convincingly. You may say that a great fortune which a widow and children can inherit only because the government protects them in their rights should pay something for the protection.

Or you can say that the tax should be put on the strong man in his life while he is working, and not put on his coffin or children.

The important thing to do is that every man should do his best work. And the man worth having will work five times as hard as he would otherwise to provide for his children and mother. To discourage that is not a good idea.

Gladstone's two sons call "liar, coward and fool" a Capt. Peter Wright, who writes indecently about their father, saying it was his Gladstone's habit, "in public to speak the language of the highest and strictest principle, and in private to pursue and possess every sort of woman."

Why Gladstone's sons should notice the statement of a "liar, coward and fool" is not clear.

The writer used to see Gladstone every day in the fighting prime of his old age, and can testify that Gladstone had little time for foolishness.

Every night he sat on the opposite bench as late as 3 o'clock in

BODY OF BRYAN STARTS TRIP TO REST UNENDING

CROWDS PAY TRIBUTE TO DEAD COMMONER AS FUNERAL TRAIN LEAVES DAYTON FOR NATIONAL CAPITAL

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 29—AP—The Bryan funeral party arrived in Chattanooga at 10:15 central standard time. The public was admitted to the special Pullman, where in single file they viewed the remains of the dead statesman.

The car with its sorrowing passengers was transferred here to the fast Southern train which would reach Washington early Thursday after stops in Knoxville, Bristol, Ronako and Lynchburg.

Conductor G. W. Mitchell of Knoxville, was in charge of the train which drew the funeral car northward. Mr. Mitchell for four winters has been a member of Mr. Bryan's Sunday school class in the first Presbyterian church at Miami.

Dayton Says Good Bye

Dayton, Tenn., July 29—Quitting forever the little southern town where friends made his last days happy, the body of William J. Bryan early today began its long train journey from Dayton to Washington where the nation will pay the final tribute to his memory at Arlington cemetery.

The special Pullman drew out of Dayton at 9:03 o'clock moving first toward Chattanooga where the public will enter to view the placid face of the great Commoner. Mrs. Bryan with members of her household, occupied the forward end of the car. The bronze casket lay on supports in the observation section at the rear of the coach.

Citizens of Dayton, where the former secretary of state waged his last vigorous fight for religious orthodoxy, gathered at the track side to see their leader and a friend depart. Associates of his battle in support of the Tennessee evolution statute stood with bowed heads as the funeral train moved away through the Cumberland hills.

Citizens Form Escort

The body of Bryan began its long journey to the national capital when the bronze casket in which the Commoner lay was removed from the Rogers residence at 7:10 this morning.

The widow followed as the remains of her distinguished husband were placed aboard the special Pullman on a siding near the place of Mr. Bryan's death.

Citizens of Dayton attended the funeral carriage on the short march through the streets of the town. A guard of six uniformed men formed the simple escort.

Woman Struck by Train; Failed to Hear Whistle

(The Associated Press)

Superior, Wis., July 29—Mrs. Wilamina Handberg, pioneer resident of Iron River, Wis., is in a critical condition as the result of being struck by the morning passenger train on the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway at 8 o'clock today.

Mrs. Handberg, who is deaf, did not hear the whistle although it was blown repeatedly. Her back and hip were both broken and physicians gave her about five hours to live.

Illinois Pastor Killed in Leap From Automobile

(The Associated Press)

Superior, Wis., July 29—The Rev. Walter Johnson, aged 62, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Charleston, Ill., was instantly killed near Summit Lake, Wis., Tuesday night when he jumped from an automobile driven by A. B. Crowe, in which his son and himself were passengers. Johnson was frightened when he saw the car going into a ditch. His neck was broken in the fall. No one else was hurt. Rev. Johnson was on his way to Three Lakes to join his wife. The body was taken to Appleton today for burial.

Find Park Falls Man With Bullet in Heart

(The Associated Press)

Park Falls, Wis., July 29—With a bullet hole thru the heart the body of Louis Nelson, 65, was found near the Soo Line tracks in this city yesterday morning. A new revolver with one empty chamber lay beside the corpse. The coroner learned that Nelson purchased the weapon at a local hardware store. No information could be obtained regarding the man's relatives

Andrews Plans to Lock Borders Against Illicit Importation of Liquor

Washington, July 29. —AP— In furtherance of his basic plan to choke off the liquor supply at its source, Assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury proposes to erect a line of defense on the north and south borders that will dovetail in with the interior prohibition organization.

The assistant secretary began consideration today of a plan to reinforce the customs service border patrol to take care of the new defense areas. He had on his desk reports from all border collection officials, each giving suggestions and recommendations for meeting their particular problems.

Mr. Andrews apparently is committed to a completely motorized border patrol system.

Treasury officials have estimated that the government loses between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 a year through smuggling and the plans under study would be aimed to prevent the illegal entry, not only of liquor, but of many articles of merchandise on which tariff duties are levied.

SAYS WATERWAY: NEEDED BY WEST

FORMER GOVERNOR OF IOWA OUTLINES BENEFITS TO ACCRUE FROM ST. LAWRENCE PROJECT

Cedar Point, Ohio, July 29—AP.—The completion of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway project will do for the Mississippi valley what the Panama canal has done for the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, W. L. Harding, Des Moines, former governor of Iowa, declared in an address today at the convention of the National Hay association here.

Mid-West Landlocked

"There are 40,000,000 odd people adjacent to the Great Lakes who are landlocked—that is they are shut off from ocean transportation," he said "these people want to ship their products out; equally they want to buy from the outside.

"The St. Lawrence, if opened to big boats, will make it possible for them to get out and for the rest of the world to get into them."

"The opening of the St. Lawrence for ocean boats will relieve the railroad congestion between the east and middlewest in the hauling of bulk freight. It will help all the railways of the country.

Only Question of Time

"The development of the St. Lawrence is inevitable, it must come. Economically it is sound and basically it is right. The only question is when will plans be perfected and construction started."

The building of the Panama canal, he considered, had changed the transportation map of the United States in the last ten years.

Nab Counterfeiting Gang in Detroit Apartment Raid

Detroit, July 29.—AP—Five men and two women alleged leaders of a clever counterfeiting gang believed to have been responsible for flooding Chicago, Detroit and other cities in the middlewest with counterfeit bills, were arrested early today by federal and local authorities in a raid on an apartment.

The gang is thought to have issued a series of bogus $20 bills. The bills taken by the authorities are said to be almost perfect facsimiles of the federal reserve note in engraving and detail.

The men under arrest are:

Curos Mandraka, Edward C. Williams, Edward Chick, William Haie and Lawrence Gerabi. The women are: Florence Reed and Violet Wilson.

Golf Favorites Have Hard Fights at Kenosha

Kenosha, Wis., July 29—AP—Top-heavy favorites in the women's state golf tournament survived the championship flight in today's play here after being extended to the limit in most cases by "under-dogs." Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, who did not play up to her usual form, defeated Mrs. Jack Blakeslee, five up and three to play. Miss Frances Hadfield, Blue Mound, was forced to play Mrs. Eugene Lawton, Racine, down to the eighteenth green and finally won two up. Miss Dorothy Page, Madison, eliminated Miss Helen Grobbens, Grant Park, five up and three while Miss Virginia Gittens, Green Bay, disposed of Mrs. W. C. Roenitz, Tripoli, five up and three. These were the only matches completed up until noon today.

Yeggs Fail In Attempt At Big Haul

Local police officials working on the case to date have been unable to find any trace of yeggmen who made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the American Railway Express company of a large amount of negotiable checks and about $61 in cash contained in the safe, the first of the week. A grip belonging to Julian Arpin of this city and valued at about $50 was stolen by the thieves.

Only their haste to break open the safe is believed by the local express agent to have saved a considerable amount of financial papers in the safe at the time. Too hard a blow was struck during the operations, which jammed the combination and prevented opening of the strongbox.

That expert safe riflers perpetrated the robbery is the belief of local police authorities and the agent here, as the work done shows evidence of knowledge of the game, they say. Local talent is not suspected, for this reason.

Entrance was gained into the building through the west platform side of the freight room. The handles were stripped from the doors.

May Carry Creek Water to Port Mill

Experiments are being conducted at the Four Mile creek, south of this city, that may result in the laying of a pipe line across the Wisconsin river to carry water from the creek to the Nekoosa-Edwards company paper mill at Port Edwards. Chemical tests of the water are being made, and if it is found to be satisfactory for paper manufacture the company may undertake to pipe it to the Port Edwards mill.

The water of the Wisconsin river, mill officials said in discussing the project, is unsatisfactory for paper manufacture because of its dark color. An ample supply of comparatively clean water is available at the Four Mile, the flow of which varies from 45,000 to 150,000 gallons per minute. The Port Edwards mill requires about 10,000 gallons of water per minute.

E. P. Gleason, engineer for the Nekoosa-Edwards company, is conducting the investigation at the Four Mile. If it is decided to make use of the creek water, it will probably be carried beneath the river bed to the mill in a 36 inch pipe, he said.

Six Injured When Circus Seats Fall at Spooner

Spooner, Wis., July 29—Six persons were injured here late yesterday when the whole section of reserved seats occupied by more than 300 people collapsed during a matinee circus performance. Scores of others occupying the section were scratched and bruised but not seriously.

Mrs. E. Sonlein, an automobile tourist from Southern Illinois, whose party had stopped here yesterday to take in the performance, was the most seriously injured of the six. She suffered a compound fracture of her right leg.

Molla in Semi-Finals of Seabright Tourney

Seabright, N. J., July 29—Mrs Molla Mallory, of New York, advanced to the semi-final round of the women's singles in the Seabright Bowl Invitation tennis tournament today by defeating Miss Molly D Thayer of Philadelphia, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Mary K. Browne, of Santa Monica, Calif., also won her way into the semi-finals by defeating Miss Martha Bayard of Shorthills, N. J.

Drowns Near Rhinelander

Rhinelander, Wis., July 29—AP—George Prussie, bachelor, aged 40, and an Oneida county farmer, was drowned in Lake McNaughton when his boat capsized while he was fishing. The body has not been recovered.

DEFEATS PLAN TO BAR THEORY FROM SCHOOLS

CONGRESS MUST SETTLE ISSUE FOR WHOLE COUNTRY, DECLARES BROTHER OF DEAD COMMONER.

Atlanta, Ga., July 29—An amendment designed to prohibit the teaching of evolution in the common schools of Georgia today was voted down overwhelmingly by the state house of representatives.

The amendment was offered to the general appropriations bill now before the house and would provide that any teacher who taught a theory of man in contradiction of the Bible's account, could not receive a salary from the common school appropriation.

Up to Congress

Creston, Ia., July 29.—AP—Congress eventually will be called upon to take a hand in the evolution controversy, Charles W. Bryan, brother of William J. Bryan said when he passed through Creston last night enroute to Washington to attend his famous brother's funeral. Mr. Bryan indicated he was deeply interested in the cause for which the great Commoner made his last fight, and that he might be active in carrying on the work of his dead brother.

"The people of the United States," he said, "are becoming aroused to the real issue in the conflict between religion and evolution."

ARRAIGN 23 ON BOOZE CHARGES

CALUMET AND OUTAGAMIE COUNTY VIOLATORS ROUNDED UP ON FEDERAL WARRANTS AT GREEN BAY

Green Bay, Wis., Juy 29.—AP—Hearings of twenty-three alleged liquor law violators began in federal court here this morning before United States Commission John Watermolen. The accused were rounded up by federal prohibition officers, working quietly throughout Outagamie and Calumet counties during the early summer months.

Warrants for the arrest and appearance in Green Bay for preliminary hearings have been sworn out for each of the alleged violators charging them with the sale of illicit liquors. The hearings of three were disposed of this morning. Each was bound over on bonds of $500 to the grand jury, which convenes in Milwaukee on October fifth. Hearings will be continued this afternoon and court will then adjourn until September.

In line with the campaign to clean up Wisconsin general agents working out of Chicago, visited the establishment of so called soft drink venders early in May and secured evidence against all of the men.

Those to appear this morning were Tom Hill, Andrew and Henry Pekel, all of Appleton.

Scene of Boundary Row Shifts to Hurley Today

Trotsky and Dzerjinski, Russia's Business Men, Rulers of Soviet Republic

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following account of the new situation in Russia's government was written by H. L. Rennick, an American newspaperman who has been in Russia eight years, being an Associated Press correspondent most of that time. His information is first-hand.)

Moscow—Trotsky and Dzerjinski, business men.

This is the new picture events are painting in Soviet Russia, and it may seem a queer trick to play on public opinion, for these two men, Trotsky, the Red war lord, and Dzerjinski, the head of the "Cheka," were long considered by anti-Bolsheviks as the arch-devils of the Red revolution.

They have been brought into their new posts—Trotsky made head of the concessions committee, and Dzerjinski, as head of the Supreme Economic Council, made dictator of all things economic and industrial in Soviet Russia, because they are the best organizers the Bolshevik government has developed.

In fact, they work and act like busisess men. Trotsky, recalled from the exile in the Caucasus where his enemies within the Communist party sent him after Lenin's death, even looms like a business man. As he sits at his desk in the concessions committe building, pushing buttons, he might be an American general of finance. He built up the Red army out of a nucleus that was virtually nothing but skeletons, old rags and scrap iron, and made it win battles and move like a well-oiled machine.

Trotsky's photographs make him appear Mephistophelian. In the flesh, his dark scanty beard is hardly apparent; and the skin beneath shows up pink like the face of a well-tubbed Englishman. He wears his simply-cut, unadorned, military blouses as if they had been made by a Fifth Avenue tailor.

"No man can look like that," an American woman said to her husband after she had seen Trotsky in Moscow, "unless he is turned out by a valet."

I investigated, and found that Trotsky has a personal servant, who looks after his clothes. Even the proletarian conscience of the Communist party doesn't grudge Trotsky that. Trotsky makes up his mind quickly, and insists that his decisions are carried through. Most of the other Communist leaders, if one is to judge by the confusion that prevails in their offices, order something done, and then forget about it. Trotsky sees that it is done.

So does Felix Dzerjinski. He is a Pole, and wears his real name. In the czar's time he spent many years in exile and in prison. When Lenin appointed him ahead of the "Cheka," and told him to stamp out counter-revolution, he stamped out counter-revolution.

Dzerjinski's "Cheka" is credited with the slaying of tens of thousands but the man himself looks as if he wouldn't harm a fly. He is mild-mannered, gray-bearded, slightly stoop-shouldered, and his favorite recreation is taking candy to the children of the orphan asylums in Moscow.

But the very mention of his name throws a shock of fear into every one of the Bolshevik regime, and, also, into Communists themselves who are slack in their work in his department.

When he was appointed head of the Supreme Economic Council he also was permitted to keep his post as head of the "Cheka." He used the latter to keep check on the former, and sent scores of grafters to the firing squad, prison and exile.

BATTERY E GOES TO CAMP SPARTA

LOCAL NATIONAL GUARD ORGANIZATION ENTERS ANNUAL SUMMER TRAINING ON SATURDAY

Seventy members of Battery E, local national guard unit of the 121st regiment, will be among the approximately 1,100 guardsmen of Wisconsin who will gather at Sparta, Wis., on Saturday for artillery practice. The contingent, which will remain in camp until August 15, is the last of the national guard troops to go into summer camp, the other branches having completed their period at Camp Douglas last week.

95 Per Cent Attend Camp

About 95 per cent of the national guard enrollment will have attended the encampment this year, Lieut. Col. Nicholas M. Schantz, assistant adjutant general, said. About 3,500 men went to Camp Douglas. The strength of the guards is nearly 5,000.

The organizations in addition to the local battery which will take part in the tactical firing on the United States' army's artillery range at Sparta include one regiment of light artillery, one battalion of heavy artillery, one ammunition train, three batteries of light artillery from La Crosse, one from Chippewa Falls, one from Merrill and one from Stevens Point. One battery each of heavy artillery comes from Green Bay, Whitefish Bay and Hartford. The ammunition train is from River Falls.

Raise Mess Fund

The artillery range near Sparta is considered one of the finest in the country, and permits firing at 8,000 yards.

Through the efforts of W. F. Kellogg, known as "Dad" to all the Battery E men, the mess fund of the local guard will be of substantial size again this year. Mr. Kellogg and the Kellogg Brothers Lumber Company, The First National Bank, Wood County National Bank, Citizens National Bank, Consolidated, McKercher & Rossier, and the Charles Hagerstrom Post, American Legion, have contributed $135 to the mess fund, which combined with a small balance from the year before and the proceeds, amounting to $25 realized on a recent dance, gives a good sized fund to buy the extra goodies that the men appreciate when in the strenuous training period at camp. Capt. Chester Severance told the Tribune that he and the men appreciate the generosity of all those contributing and extended his thanks in behalf of the battery.

Yankee Yachts Lead for International Trophy

Toronto, July 29.—AP—The two American contenders for the George cup, international yacht trophy, apparently had their Canadian rival hopelessly beaten today in the second race of the series. At the end of the first round of seven miles, the Rogue, of Rochester, N. Y., led the Kathea, of Watertown, N. Y., by forty yards, with Nyada, the Canadian entry a quarter of a mile behind.

Jealousy Inspires Youth to Slay Woman, Two Men

Richmond, Va., July 29.—AP—His jealousy for Mrs. Vivian Tomlin Peers, former artist's model, he had confessed to police, caused Rudolph E. Disse, 18, to kill her and two men and seriously wound another man in a sudden burst of gunplay that startled Richmond yesterday.

Detective Sergeant J. Harvey Burke, who died last night as the third victim of the shooting, was one of the two men whom Disse told police he shot simply because he was afraid they would frustrate his purpose of killing G. Carter, the other victim and his supposed rival, after he had shot Mrs. Peers.

Willis Britt, who was seriously wounded, was a stranger to the others and had simply volunteered to take Mrs. Peers, Disse and Burke in his automobile when they were leaving police court. Mrs. Peers had been arraigned there on charges made by Disse and the latter was in court on charges of Carter that he had threatened him.

As the two left court Burke arrested Disse on a bad check charge. He accompanied them with Britt. Remaining in the car there as the others stepped to the sidewalk, Disse suddenly whipped out a pistol, witnesses told the police, and without warning shot down the woman and two men.

Rushing in the car to a restaurant owned by Carter in the down town section, Disse brandishing a pistol shot him through the heart.

After escaping in the confusion, the youthful slayer was captured by a traffic policeman

WITHHOLDS DATE BUT SAYS STATE NEEDS SENATOR

WILL TIME ANNOUNCEMENT TO AVOID CONFLICT WITH FARM ACTIVITIES, GOVERNOR SAYS

Madison, Wis., July 29—Governor Blaine announced today that a special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator La Follette "will be called at a time as will best accommodate the largest number of voters."

He made the announcement, he said, to give the people time in which to study issues and candidates. The long session of congress beginning in December "is going to be an important session", he asserted, and the absence of one vote "might defeat the interests of the people of Wisconsin and of the whole country."

An assertion that the date of the election should be at such a time as will make it possible for farmers to attend the primary and election "with the greatest convenience and without unnecessary sacrifice" was regarded unofficially as indicating that the election probably would be held in September, when farm work would be lighter than at present.

Leaves For Vacation

The statement was issued just before Governor Blaine left Madison on a vacation trip into northern Wisconsin. It was said at his office that he would be gone for "a few weeks", and it was indicated that he would be absent from the Capital for at least three weeks.

The governor's announcement follows:

"The question of whether or not I will call a special election has arisen and I feel that the people ought to know my decision in advance of the call so that they may have time in which to study issues and candidates.

"Congress meets for the long session the first part of December. That session, in all probability, will continue into May next year.

"It is going to be an important session. Agricultural questions, federal taxation, appropriations, railroad regulations, the protection of our natural resources, foreign debts, and other vital questions affecting the people of Wisconsin, no doubt will be voted upon.

Representation Important

"Some of the questions confronting congress are such that the absence of one vote might defeat the interests of the people of Wisconsin and of the whole country.

I have no right to deny to the people representation in the senate of the United States for four or five months.

"Under such circumstances my plain duty is to give the people of this state the right to elect a senator to take his seat in December, and the law so contemplates.

"I am mindful of the fact that the farmers are engaged in the harvesting of crops, threshing of grain, filling of silos, and other essential farm work that must be done in season. The date of the election should be at such a time as will make it possible for them to attend the primary and election with the greatest convenience and without unnecessary sacrifice.

"Therefore, I desire to announce that a special election will be called at a time as will best accommodate the largest number of voters."

Emery Praises Young Bob

J. Q. Emery, state dairy and food commissioner, issued a statement today in which he urged support of Robert M. La Follette, jr., for the vacant senatorial seat. He said that "Governor Blaine is wanted for another important occasion." It has been reported unofficially that Governor Blaine will be a candidate for the United States senate in the regular election next year, seeking the seat of Senator Irvine Lenroot.

Bob Meets Zimmerman

Madison, Wis., July 29.—AP—Another development in the political situation here today was a conference between Robert M. La Follette jr., and Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman.

It was made known after the conference that the question of filling the vacancy in the United States senate left by the death of Senator La Follette was discussed for nearly an hour. Mr. Zimmerman, leader of a faction of the progressives opposed to Governor Blaine informed Mr. La Follette that he would remain a political enemy of the governor, but it was reported that there was no other discussion of Mr. Zimmerman's plans.

Mr. La Follette did not say whether he would be a candidate for his father's unexpired term, but reports that he was a probable candidate, were discussed, as well as the situation generally.

LOCAL SCOUT IS AWARDED BADGE

PHILLEO NASH DECORATED WITH EAGLE BADGE, HIGHEST RANK IN SCOUTING, BY MARSHFIELD SCOUT OFFICER

Philleo Nash, youngest son of Scout Executive and Mrs. Guy Nash of this city, was decorated with the badge of an Eagle Scout at the noon meeting of the Rotary club at the Hotel Witter today. The Rev. Oscar Lee Black, prominent Marshfield pastor, enthusiast and worker in Boy Scout activities at Marshfield, made the presentation and delivered an inspiring message on the influence of men of a community on the lives of the boys. Philleo Nash is the second Wisconsin Rapids Scout to attain the highest honor in Scouting that of an Eagle Scout. His brother, Thomas Nash, several years ago won the twenty-one merit badges which qualified him for the honor.

Rev. Mr. Black praised young Nash for his industriousness in earning the highest rank in Scouting, citing him to use the great knowledge he has accumulated in the years of study and preparation for the examination in the twenty-one tests to aid his other young friends in the development of their minds and bodies, qualifying them to be useful American citizens.

A letter of congratulation and commendation to Philleo Nash written by James E. West, Chief Scout Executive for the United States, was read by the Rev. Black.

The subject of Mr. Black's talk was the influence of clean men upon the lives of boys in the community. He said that every man who was honest and upright was the hero of some boy in the community and he urged the men of this city and community to impress the boys with the highest idealism by leading exemplary lives and by joining in the activities of the community with the boys as pals.

"Time is what life is composed of," the speaker stated, "and it is only right that men utilize their time in activites that beenfit and aid boys. Likewise it is important that the time of the boys be spent profitably in seeking knowledge of things that will broaden their lives and make them better American citizens." The evil things that have happened to many of the boys and girls in the community, such as the recent Bakerville and Marshfield affairs in which liquor and other immoral acts have been responsible for the injuries and wrecking of lives of the young people would not have occurred if youngsters had been taught and led into activities that would occupy their attention during idle moments, he declared.

Postpone Practice Session

Owing to the arrival of the circus in Wisconsin Rapids today, the practice session of the Al Norminton Leaguers was postponed from this to tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Farmers Give Thanks For Crops on Feast of St. Ann

Stevens Point, Wis.—Following a custom which has prevailed at Sacred Heart parish, Polonia, for a quarter of a century, the feast of St. Ann was given especial recognition by the members of the congregation on Monday.

Although the feast day was Sunday, especial observance of it by Sacred Heart parish and by the Catholic parishes at Torun, Alban and Fancher was postponed to yesterday, when Rev. J. L. Pescinski, pastor at Polonia, was assisted by priests from all parts of the county.

Special celebration of the feast is of result of a devastating hail storm which destroyed all the crops in that section of the county on St. Ann's day, 25 or more years ago. At that time, the members of Sacred Heart congregation made a promise that each year they would give veneration to St. Ann if she should intercede for them and their crops would be spared.

The promise has not been forgotten, and each year Sacred Heart congregation and the smaller parishes in that section of the county which have sprung from Sacred Heart church, gather at Polonia to keep their vow.

Solemn high mass was celebrated Monday morning, with Rev. Victor Kaudy of St. Mary's church at Custer celebrant. Rev. R. H. McDonald, chaplain at St. Michael's hospital, was deacon and Rev. Joseph Szupryt, assistant at St. Peter's, Stevens Point, was sub-deacon. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Fr. Zaniara, who is a member of the Jesuit summer colony at Waupaca lakes. Following mass, procession of the blessed sacrament was held.

Hundreds of farmers from miles about attended the services.

Grand Rapids Town Youth Arrested On Serious Charge

Leslie Snyder, 23, of the town of Grand Rapids, was released from the county jail this morning where he had been put last evening following his arrest by the chief of police last night on a charge of technical rape committeed June 22. A 15-year-old Nekoosa girl was the complainant. Snyder, who did not deny the charge, was admitted to bail of $1,000, secured this morning by his father, Joe Snyder, and his case was adjourned to July 31.

Build Fire Truck Here For Loyal Department

The sixth fire truck to be copied from the Reo truck designed by Fire Chief August Miller and used in the local department for all small fires was recently finished in the Anderson Carriage Works of this city for the Loyal, Wis., fire department. Hugo Lyna did the paint job.

Two 35-gallon chemical tanks and an 18-foot extension ladder are carried on the machine, which can carry 600 feet of standard fire hose.

Pyrotol Will Be Available to Wood County Farmers

The anticipated receipt of new supplies of pyrotol, government war explosive, is expected to give a new stimulus to the land clearing program in Wood county, according to R. A. Peterson, county agricultural agent, who is now receiving orders for the material. Nearly 200,000 pounds of pyrotol were distributed in the county last year, according to Mr. Peterson, with the result that a large acreage of previously idle land was brought under cultivation at a comparatively small cost.

While much of the cut over land in the county is not well adapted to agriculture, there is also a big area where land clearing is a profitable investment, Mr. Peterson declares.

Thursday Night

is John Lauletta, harpist.

Mr. Lauletta, according to Roy D. Smith, leader of the band, is one of the ablest harpists in the country and second to none when it comes to playing in a band. There is but one thing that can keep Lauletta from playing the harp, that is to take all the strings off it. If the wind blows his music away, or the librarian fails to locate it among the thousands of sheets the Highlanders carry, it is perfectly all right with Lauletta; he just improvises and Mr. Smith says some of his improvisions are really an improvement on the original harp arrangement.

Lauletta has one weakness; he likes sunshine. He wants the sun to shine all the time. That is why he would rather spend his winters in St. Petersburg, Fla., the "Sunshine City" than anywhere else. Rain and damp weather means broken harp-strings so when it's cloudy, Lauletta puts an extra supply of strings in his kilts, goes sadly to his harp and hopes for the best as he strums the strings.

VISITORS JOIN IN INDIAN POWWOW

EVERYBODY DOES SQUAW DANCE AT BAYFIELD WHERE PLANS FOR BIG PAGEANT ARE GOING FORWARD

Everybody powwows each evening at Indian Pageant Park. Sunset over the pine clad hills. Old Chief sounds the call in Chippewa. Young men rush up the hillside into the Indian village to don their war paint and feathers, with bells around their ankles.

The campfire flares. The war drum is carried down onto the lot. A slow dull pounding on the tomtom with chants in high pitched voices; now it is the sweet corn dance, now they walk in couples to the Indian Two-step—now it is the war dance of centuries. The circle widens for the visiting newspaper folk from Milwaukee, the dancing instructor's Eau Claire relatives, a Chicago doctor, a Duluth dancing girl's visiting mother, the Indian chaperon from Reserve the orchestra players, boys and girls, old and young, join in the immense circle each night before taps, to the queer rhythm of the squaw dance.

Daily rehearsals are progressing on the lot, under O. A. Reetz pageant director and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Mayer dancing directors. Rows of completed costumes hang in the costume room in the barracks, made under Mary Dempsey's direction. Pageant Park is closed to the public until Pageant time, except on Sundays, while each day brings nearer the opening of Apostle Islands Indian Pageant at Bayfield, the Top of Wisconsin, August 2 to 16.

Larger Parking Space Needed At Trout Hatchery

Wild Rose, Wis.—As a result of its popularity with tourists and residents of nearby communities, larger parking space is being sought for the state trout hatchery here.

More than 200 automobiles laden with tourists and picnickers stopped at the hatchery last Sunday and a lesser number visit the grounds on week days, B. O. Webster, state superintendent of fisheries, said. The grounds are shady and well kept, affording a picnic spot as well as a place of interest to visitors. The conservation commission is seeking some solution for the parking problem, Mr. Webster said, possibly by the acquisition of a small piece of adjoining land.

The hatcheries at Bayfield, Madison and St. Croix Falls also are popular spots for visitors, and the recently acquired hatchery at Osceola is expected to take its place in the list. Tourists especially visit the grounds to see the fish that are kept in outdoor tanks for breeding purposes. Scores of visitors on Sunday gather about the tanks at feeding time to watch the trout receive their rations.

Worthless $27 Check Costs Him Over $90

Action against O. L. Bowers of Green Bay was dismissed by the district attorney today when Bowers paid the amount of a worthless check $27, issued to Thomas Regan, deceased, and costs amounting to over $90 in all.

Fords To Play Sparks Circus Nine Here Today

A ball game that promises to be a thriller was scheduled for five o'clock on the fairgrounds field this afternoon between the Anderson Fords and the Sparks Circus nine. Bill Anderson's warriors, when they heard the Sparks Circus men were organized for a game, issued a challenge which was promptly accepted. Officials of the circus say that they have a team that will be the match of anything in the city. It is composed of tent men, entertainers, band men and other employees of the circus. They lost a close game, 2 to 1, at Stevens Point, Tuesday, where they showed.

News Agent Is Fined On Rum Charge

Wausau, Wis.—Eddie Powers, one of three men arrested early Monday morning at New Lisbon by Milwaukee railroad detectives, pleaded guilty to a charge of violating the state prohibition law here Tuesday and was fined $100 and costs by Judge Reid.

Powers, a newsagent on the Milwaukee road, was working on the special excursion train returning from Minocqua to Chicago when arrested. Twenty-one bottles of alleged gin were found in his possession on the train. His two helpers, Rudolph M. W. Giese and Kenneth Pauley, arrested with Powers, were released when the latter took all the blame.

William Frank, who was taken from the same train at Wausau, pleaded guilty to a charge of selling obscene literature and was fined $50 and costs.

C. S. Smith of La Crosse, captain of police for the Milwaukee road, was here to investigate the cases. He declared the company is going to put a stop to the selling of liquor and obscene literature on passenger trains, and that a special force of men had been put on to detect violations.

Pays $100 Fine and Costs

One hundred dollars and costs was the sentence imposed upon William Johnson, employed in the Mason saloon, when he was arraigned before Judge Craig Connor in county court this morning. Johnson was caught on July 22, by state dry agents in the act of pouring a drink of alleged moonshine whisky in the saloon where he was bartender. Fine and costs were paid.

Collegiate Athletic Body Plans Memorial to Camp

(The Associated Press)

Chicago, July 29—The National collegiate athletic association, comprising 225 of the leading colleges and universitfes, will erect a memorial to Walter Camp, the father of American football.

Major John A. Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the western conference, said today that a committee consisting of A. A. Stagg of the university of Chicago, Dr. J. W. Wilce, of Ohio State, E. K. Hall of Dartmouth and Walter Powell, a former Wisconsin star, had been appointed to cooperate with Yale authorities and Mrs. Camp in the erection of the memorial.

Railroad Freight Rates—

It is generally conceded that if the country is to have private ownership of railroads they must be supported by the shipping and traveling public.

The returns from existing rates during the past few years have not been adequate to pay a fair return or even any return to the owners of many railroads. This is especially true of the roads of the northwest, of which the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, now in receivership, is an important one.

An application for increased freight rates on western roads is now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway have proposed and will advocate before the State and Interstate commissions a new plan of rate making by which a very small increase in freight rates on western railroads can be so distributed among them that the maximum benefits can be given to weaker lines without unduly favoring the strong, prosperous roads.

The plan involves segregating the money produced by a small increase in freight rates on all western railroads and putting it into a common fund or pool and distributing the money to all the roads by which it is earned in the ratio that each road failed during the preceding year to earn the 5¾% on its property investment which the Transportation Act of 1920 allows.

If this plan had been in effect during 1924 the Milwaukee Road would probably have avoided a Receivership.

The Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway have not been able to secure the support of the other western railroads to their plan and, therefore, have decided to advocate the plan independently for the benefit of this property and as the plan which best solves the railroad problem with the lowest burden to shippers. For this purpose the Receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway have engaged former Secretary of State, Mr. Charles E. Hughes, to assist them in presenting the plan and urging its adoption. Full particulars about the plan can be obtained from any agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway or from the undersigned.

Only Beauty Counts in National Pageant

At the left you see Ruth Malcomson, the present "Miss America." Below you see Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, O., who held the throne for two consecutive years. At the right is Margaret Gorman, of Washington, D. C., the first to win the national contest. All were "naturals," girls who won unaided by the cosmetic art.

No, the man did not win a beauty contest. He is Armand T. Nichols, considered one of the country's foremost judges of feminine pulchritude through his connection with the Atlantic City Pageant.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS
NEA Service Writer

Atlantic City—Throw out the powder, girls, bury the lipstick and let your faces shine so that all may see your good features, and glorify the ideals of youth, beauty and modesty!

For the annual coronation of the Queen of Beauty approaches—Miss America for 1925 will be selected. And take it from me, you won't have a chance if you show up on the Atlantic City boardwalk with a synthetic complexion instead of your own.

"The Queen of Beauty must be genuine," declares Armand T. Nichols, the head of the Atlantic City national beauty pageant who will pick the queen after the cities have rounded up their local prides. "All the young ladies who have won the 'Miss America' crown have been honest-to-goodness beauties. "Miss 1925' will be no exception."

I do not pretend to understand the high type of courage required to judge a baby or a beauty contest. It is beyond my conception. But Nichols possesses this under his business-like and dignified exterior, for he has lived through four pickings and was able to tell me something about it.

"'Miss America' stands for the best American traditions of beauty," he explained, "starting with the first Margaret Gorman, of Washington, D. C., in 1921. She was your regular peaches-and-cream type with radiant golden curls and youthful figure. She looked like a debutante or a school girl.

"Then came Katherine Campbell, of Columbus, O., who held the title for two years. Her figure was perfect. Her face was delicate and chiseled and her coloring superb. She stood out like a cameo among the obvious, make-up girls around her.

"And Ruth Malcomson of Philadelphia, the present 'Miss America'—she is your very modern type, tall, slim, natural complexion and curls and a smile worth a million dollars. No one artificial thing about her.

"These girls have won the title on their merits. The roses on their cheeks have been natural. Their long, lovely hair has known not the henna or the barber's clippers. Their lips have not fallen into the evil ways of the lipstick. Their eyelashes are unbeaded. Even their youth is genuine!"

Which reminds me that the rejuvenated, hand-sewn damsel need not apply. The widow, grass or sod, be she as beautiful as Helen of Troy, is banned. For the queen may not have been married or divorced. She must be between the ages of 16 and 30. She must be chaperoned. Bachelor girls, too, can keep out.

"The idealized type of womanhood is quite different today from that it was five years ago," says Nichols.

"Girls today have more of the flesh and flate and less of the cling and pose. They have much more common sense. They are less sentimental and more casual. They can take care of themselves and they let the world know they can.

"But I believe the type will switch back to the old-fashioned, more romantic type without the artificiality and dependence of former years. I believe the American woman leads the world in beauty because of the happy, healthy, athletic life she leads."

If you doubt this, he invites you to come to Atlantic City in September and judge for yourself.

Tourists Far and Wide Look to Ed for Routes

Ed Flanagan, who conducts the tourist information bureau for the First National bank here, is acquiring a reputation for accurate knowledge of highway conditions in Wisconsin that is spreading throughout the middle west. Scarcely a day passes but from one to a half-dozen requests come for route through Wisconsin, many of them from people outside of the state, who have never been in Wisconsin Rapids but who have heard through friends or neighbors of Ed Flanagan and his knowledge of Badger state highways.

RODEO

"Madison should protest," says the Capital Times of Madison, deploring the rodeo exhibition which the Chicago Association of Commerce is sponsoring. Maybe Madison will protest. Great Britain has protested, Albany, N. Y., has protested, busybodies most everywhere in the world have protested.

There is nothing particularly elevating or worthwhile about a rodeo. Probably it involves a certain amount of cruelty. We don't recommend it as a good form of popular entertainment.

But tastes differ. If there are people in Chicago or elsewhere who want to attend a rodeo, that seems to us to be strictly their affair, or at most the affair of the people of their community. It certainly is not the affair of people in England, Albany, Madison, or Wisconsin Rapids.

The worst that can be said of a rodeo is that it is the reflection of an imperfect degree of civilization. Well, there is no perfect civilization anywhere, and it is a little difficult to tell just what is representative of the best that has been attained, and what is the worst, or near it. We are inclined to believe that there are a lot worse things in the world than rodeos. Moreover, what harm there is in it is not in the thing itself so much as in the attitude of mind which it reflects. And attitudes of mind can't be improved by passing laws or hanging up moralistic "verboten" signs.

CAN ZIMMERMAN BEAT EKERN?

The Rev. S. Paterson Todd, state field man of the Lord's Day Alliance, declared in a recent address that Fred R. Zimmerman, present secretary of state and one of the leaders of the anti-Blaine faction of the progressive group, will be the next governor of Wisconsin.

We would not be particularly surprised if Mr. Todd's judgment should prove correct. Mr. Zimmerman has showed himself a very capable vote getter, having run ahead of Governor Blaine in the last primary test, despite the fact that the governor had his own pet candidate in the field against the secretary in addition to the conservative nominee for the office.

Dry partisans believe, moreover, that the liquor issue will play a prominent part in the campaign, and that Mr. Zimmerman's recognized aridity will aid him.

Before taking the result for granted, however, it ought to be remembered that Mr. Zimmerman has not yet announced his candidacy, that Attorney General Herman Ekern is almost certain to seek the place, and that Mr. Ekern will have behind him the endorsement of the La Follette family and of Governor Blaine, together with a reputation of long standing for being the man in Wisconsin politics who was closest in friendship and ideals to the late Senator La Follette, although lacking much of the latter's vigor in support of extreme doctrines.

REASON FOR HOPE

It is worth hoping that the announcement by President Coolidge that he will back to the limit Lincoln C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury, in his efforts to reorganize the prohibition enforcement service, will mean the beginning of the end of political domination of this branch of the government service.

Prohibition leaders who are opposing Mr. Andrews fear that his policy may alienate from the prohibition cause the support of powerful political interests which have benefitted by appointments in the dry service. They forget that the prohibition law, like any other legislation, must stand or fall on the basis of its accomplishments, and that anything which interferes with its honest and effective administration will serve in the long run to discredit it, no matter what the temporary support it may gain from those whose sole interest is in the opportunities offered for financial gain or political advancement.

LAWYERS

Clarence Darrow rises to remark that, while criminal lawyers are often looked down on, they "probably have less on their souls than the average civil lawyer."

Because, unquestionably, many a scoundrel has escaped jail through the activity of a clever lawyer, many of us are inclined to have a poor opinion of such attorneys.

But remember this: for every criminal who has escaped prison because of a criminal lawyer, there is an almost-legal financier who was enabled to lay his hands on other people's property through some civil lawyer.

Maybe Mr. Darrow isn't so far wrong at that.

KICKING

Who said kicking doesn't get one anywhere?

Consider the case of Judge Williams of Knoxville, Tenn.

According to press dispatches, he took a youth into his chambers and administered three solid kicks, a posteriori, after the lad's mother told him that the judge's small fine would not stop her boy from drinking.

Perhaps this can hardly be made a regular feature of our judicial system. Some judges are not fitted, either temperamentally or physically, for such work.

But it sounds like a dandy scheme for some cases. In the divorce courts, for example.

After all, there's nothing like making the punishment fit the crime.

New Methods in Arctic Exploration

(Dearborn Independent.)

Is MacMillan, with his airplanes and radio, taking romance out of exploration?

Peary spent twenty of the best years of his life at one job—reaching the Pole. Now one of his former aides plans to accomplish in two weeks what explorers have dreamed of for two hundred years—the exploration of the million square miles of unknown area between Alaska and the Pole. Other explorers, with their old-fashioned methods, have bitten generous chunks out of this area, but it remains for MacMillan to eliminate the word "Unknown" from maps of the Western Arctic.

Peary and Stefansson faced many a blizzard that blinded both men and dogs; MacMillan will do his exploring in balmy summer weather. Peary and Stefansson traveled thousands of miles during the "Arctic night"; MacMillan will enjoy daylight for twenty-four hours each day.

Peary and Stefansson ate cold snacks at noontime in the lee of an ice-cake—or went without lunch; MacMillan and his followers will carry warm food and thermos bottles filled with hot coffee. Tired from sitting in cramped positions while FLYING over the hummocky white desert, rather than from hauling sleds over its surface, these modern explorers will be denied the fun of pitching a camp, building a snowhouse, or sleeping on a polar bear skin spread upon the ice; possibly they will don pajamas at their land base each night, and crawl into real beds.

Shades of Shackleton! What is exploration coming to?

A Triumvirate?

(Appleton Post-Crescent.)

Robert M. La Follette, Jr., denies he has entered into a deal with Governor Blaine for succession to the senatorship. Presumably under this arrangement, if it were to be made, Blaine would take the second senatorship, that is he would be a candidate against Lenroot, while young La Follette would receive the vacancy caused by the death of his father. Mr. Ekern would be made governor.

Of one thing the public may be certain, and that is that an understanding will be reached with Blaine and Ekern, or else there will be a split and Blaine will be arrayed against Ekern and young La Follette, as events were unmistakably leading up to some time prior to the death of Senator La Follette.

No special criticism would attach to an agreement of this character. It is one of the prerogatives of politics to make deals behind the scenes and to manipulate conventions and nominations. It would not be good politics in the practical sense of the term to do otherwise. Most of our national conventions are managed after this fashion, and the custom applies to all parties. It has been carried to an unusual degree by the so-called Progressives, whose candidates are practically all hand-picked.

It may be taken for granted that young La Follette, Blaine and Ekern all have determined political aspirations. There is no reason why they cannot all be satisfied without personal conflict. There are enough openings to take care of their rivalries without coming into collision. The natural sequence is the creation of a La Follette-Blaine-Ekern triumvirate, and it will be surprising if it is not brought about.

Tainted Money

(Beloit Daily News.)

Some weeks ago the University of Wisconsin accepted a gift of a few thousand dollars from the Rockefeller foundation to promote scientific investigation of social diseases.

Now a great hullabaloo is being raised for political effect about this gift, with a demand that it be turned back to the donors.

The Capital Times, Madison organ of the La Follette movement, leads in the demand, with piously shocked talk about the university selling its soul though acceptance of a paltry endowment given to promote a scientific campaign, quite divorced from any economic teaching, to free humanity from a social scourge.

If a gift of something less than $20,000, sizing up like a pea against a haystack as compared with state university appropriations of several millions, is going to warp and pervert the soul of a great institution devoted to public service and the exposition of truth, then the contaminating qualities of Rockefeller money certainly have a prodigiously unsuspected malignance.

It is strange that the Madison paper should regard the soul of the great state university as so much more flabby than its own. In the same issue with its lengthy editorial demand that the regents "return the Rockefeller money" to save the university's soul, The Capital Times nonchalantly exposes its own soul to the identical insidious influence by printing a big gasoline advertisement (148 square inches) bought and paid for by the wicked Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

If the regents of the university reciprocate the pious solicitude of their critics, perhaps after reading this ad they will call a prayer meeting session for the soul-safety of our always interesting Madison contemporary.

The RED RAIN MYSTERY by HEADON HILL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Samuel Honeybun, retired English countryman, startles the neighborhood with the announcement that blood is found in his rain gauge. Right on the heels of the announcement comes news of the murder of—

Sir Francis Lathrop, father of Margaret Lathrop, who is engaged to Sir Guy Lathrop. Sir Guy is suspected of the murder, but—

Adrian Klyne, a private detective employed by Margaret, works on the theory that Honeybun's rain gauge has some connection with the murder.

Sir Guy leaves in a huff when Margaret refuses to marry but returns in time to protect Margaret from a strange man forcing his way into her sleeping chamber.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

"Too dark to see. You will be wondering why I came back after cut off last evening. Well, so far as I was concerned it wasn't a real tiff. I wanted to lay a false trail for Inspector Roake, who is burning to arrest me. I gave him the slip in London this evening, and here I am, under my own roof, which is the last place in England where he will look for me."

"I have been wretched all day, but now I am so happy," Margaret sealed the peace compact.

"Well, I cannot resume my habitation here openly on the old lines," said Guy. "Friend Roake would soon get wind of it through the local police, and I want to lie doggo till Klyne has won the trick. I have the utmost confidence in that young man. He conceded my innocence from the first."

"But how do you propose to live in a house full of chattering servants and keep your presence secret?" Margaret asked.

"I can only do it with your connivance and help," replied Guy. "If you are willing to accord them I shall occupy the hidden chamber in the east wing, in the family archives called 'The Priest's Hole.' I should have to rely on you, dearest, to feed me and let me out for an exercise stroll in the park after dark."

"Of course I will do it," rejoined Margaret. "I owe you a lot more than that for being such a pig last night."

"If you talk such rot I will give myself up to Roake," said Guy. "But as you have more sense I will go down the ladder and replace it where the midnight marauder took it from. In the meanwhile you can slip on a dressing-gown or something and go down and let me in through the study window. Then hey! for my hiding-hole and the ministrations of my beloved gaoler."

The program was carried out and a little later the lovers passed through a baize-covered door giving access to the east wing. This was the oldest portion of the Grange, disused and to a great extent unfurnished. Guy led me to a stop in front of a carved oak panel representing grapes. With a touch on the center bunch he sent the panel revolving inwards, revealing a dark interior which he proceeded to illuminate with a pocket torch.

"Not much comfort and no daylight," commented Margaret, noting the wooden bunk, two medieval chairs of great hardness and a table. "You'll need candles, bed-clothes and toilet ware."

"No time like the present," said Guy. "We will go and fetch the things now, while everyone is asleep."

They did so, and when Margaret had thoroughly mastered the manipulation of the movable panel, Guy stepped into what he called his bunk-hole.

"Don't forget the grub," he said and began to shut himself in.

"One moment," Margaret stayed him. "Does anyone else in the house know of this place? Aunt Priscilla or any of the servants?"

"Not a soul," Guy made answer. "It is a secret passed on from one head of the family to the next while the latter is still the heir. It went sorely against the grain with your father, but he played up like a sportsman and initiated me two years ago."

"How like him!" sighed Margaret. "I shall not rest till he has been avenged."

"That is up to us, and it seems a funny thing to say when I am a fugitive from a charge of having murdered him," replied Guy as he pulled the door of his prison to him till it clicked into its normal position.

Presently Mr. Danvers came out and joined his host.

In the glad morning sun mine host of the inn stood beaming on the doorstep of his hostelry. His podgy hands stroked the paunch under his apron with great satisfaction. His honored guest, the Reverend Mr. Danvers, had curtailed his visit to London and had returned by the first train, so he had said on demanding breakfast. He had been absent only two days instead of the six he had threatened.

Presently Mr. Danvers came out and joined his host at the doorway.

"Things pretty lively in town, sir?" the landlord inquired.

"I found them so," was the dry response. "Not much doing in Chevereel, I suppose, while I have been away?"

"Nix, seeing as nothing happens in this village in a year and you aint' been gone forty-eight hours," said the landlord. "Come to think of it, though, you was inquired for by a nice young lady—Miss Larkin, the parson's daughter. If I might make so bold, you're a quick one to make friends, Mr. Danvers."

"Perhaps it wasn't me that showed the turn of speed," laughed the man in clerical attire.

"Well, she's generally accounted a rapid mover, but I've always held that she isn't a bad sort," said the landlord. "She doesn't have a rosy time with her old man, from all accounts. Lazy sweep, and as greedy for money as they make 'em."

Klyne nodded and stepped out into the road. Out of the tail of his eye he caught a glimpse of Margaret Lathrop entering the postoffice. He was not supposed to be known to her in his curate incarnation, but he very much wanted to communicate with her, as doubtless she did with him. The opportunity was too good to be lost. He also visited the postoffice and, going to the counter, bought some stamps.

During the transaction he saw that Margaret was in one of the partitions devoted to people who want to write telegrams. He went over and occupied the next one, affecting to fill up a form.

"I am so glad you are back," whispered Margaret. "Did you make any discoveries in town?"

"I confirmed certain doubts which had been worrying me," replied Klyne vaguely. "I am not able to report anything conclusive yet. I found out that the man who tried to kill me is still in this neighborhood—never, in fact, left it for more than a few hours."

"I could have told you that," said Margaret.

And she proceeded to narrate her terrifying experiences with the dog, and with the midnight visitant at her bedroom window. But, except to say that he had gone up to London, she did not mention Sir Guy or his unexpected return in the nick of time to defend her. That would have entailed disclosing the secret of the priest's hole, and she did not feel justified in doing so till she had obtained her lover's permission.

Klyne pondered a long time. "Well," he said at last, "you had better be armed in future."

And he smuggled into her grasp a small automatic pistol, noting that the postmistress, who was also a grocer, was busy slicing bacon for a customer.

"Are you really writing a telegram, or is it only camouflage," he asked.

"Camouflage. I saw you at the door of the inn and hoped you would see me and follow me here."

Klyne went on to describe his call at the Rectory and Adela's treacherous letter introducing him to Mr. Wilfred Symes.

So absorbed were they in the interchange that they had shown no sign of having noticed that the third partition had been occupied for the last few minutes and that the occupant, who now stole quietly out of the postoffice, was the young lady under discussion. Once outside, Miss Adela Larkin strode briskly away, her ripe lips twitching in a humorous smile—an acidly humorous smile, to speak by the book.

"Him a detective and never twigged me," she muttered over and over again till she passed through the Rectory portals.

And then the horrid thought: "Had the male party to that overheard conversation manufactured it with intent to mystify the eavesdropper in the next compartment? Had he, after all, 'twigged' her as she stood at his elbow, separated only by a pane of ground glass?"

In the meanwhile the gentleman who was causing Miss Larkin such searchings of heart was taking leave of his client in the village street.

"Thank you so much," said Klyne. "You have given me a valuable item of information on which I shall proceed to act. Goodby for the present, Miss Lathrop."

He raised his clerical hat and sauntered back to the inn.

"I shall have to draw on my wardrobe for a change of garments," he muttered. "If Adela Larkin has spotted the Reverend Charles Danvers as Mr. Adrian Klyne the news may have been imparted. It is a pity that circumstances forbade my bringing a wider selection, but the check-suited bounder will have to serve. And I think I'll be an American millionaire."

LET'S FORGET POLITICS IN DRAFTING TAX L

The spectacle is predicted in the next Congress of th ocrats out-Melloning Mellon. Instead of cutting the ma surtax to 25 per cent, as Mellon proposes, some of the De tic leaders are talking of half that.

The argument, according to cynical Washington spondents, who never see any but vote-getting motives, last year the Democrats tried the experiment of joinin the insurgents, on the supposition that it was popular t the taxes on small incomes and keep them up on large o

But, from the election, they concluded that there wa thing unpopular about their party, and inferred that it r this. So now they may try the reverse policy to see if any more popular.

How would it be for somebody to consider, not pop but right? Fortunately, in financial matters the right eventually becomes the popular one.

It vindicates itself by its practical operation. Tax be too low, as well as too high. Results tell.

The worst way to adjust taxes is to try either to "ci rich" or to bluff the poor.

If you really succeed in cinching the rich, you usu jure the poor, by lowering wages, raising prices, and inc unemployment.

More often you do not succeed, but merely bluff t into thinking that you have done so. The very tax that seems to favor the poor is likely to be the one which they pay themselves, most burdensomely.

The Great Advantage of Medical Science

Step by step, science is approaching the point when there will be nothing left to die of but violence or old age.

From two sources, one in Canada and one in France, neither of them quack, come reports of apparently promising progress toward a specific cure for tuberculosis.

This news, it is fair to add, is of no present practical interest to anyone now afflicted.

Neither treatment, if successful will be available in time to be of use to anyone who is beyond recovery by present hygienic methods, or to make it safe for any one who needs the treatment to dela it in the hope of somethi specific.

But if some specific, for immunity, is developed, on major plagues of mankind gone.

Though Beaten By Tigers, Athletics Gain Half Game

BILLY EVANS Say:

HOME RUN KING

Looks very much as if St. Louis was going to corner the home run market this year.

At the present writing, Manager Hornsby of the Cardinals and Ken Williams, star outfielder of the Browns, are showing the way.

With 90 games played, each slugger has 23 circuit drives to his credit. It would seem that 40 home runs would be about the limit this year.

Without a doubt the short right field fence has considerable to do with the many home runs at Sportsmans Park in St. Louis. The small park of the Philadelphia Nationals is its only rival.

Williams, being a left handed hitter, it would seem that the short right field stand would be a greater advantage to him than Hornsby, but it isn't.

Hornsby is a free hitter, who drives them to all fields and he sends them just as far to right or left. It all depends on the style of pitch.

I understand the right field bleachers will be entirely removed when the St. Louis park is remodeled. The pitchers will say "Amen" to that.

SAYS HARRY GREB

The latest is that Middleweight Champion Harry Greb may be the next opponent of Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey.

On the surface that looks like a rather one-sided match, if you take into consideration only the relative measurements of the two fighters.

Dempsey has every advantage physically, including the punch. Only when it comes to legs does Greb have a talking point.

Greb actually believes he can beat Dempsey in any bout up to 20 rounds, there always being the proviso that Dempsey doesn't put over a knockout.

It is on his legs that Greb figures a victory over Dempsey possible. No fighter in the history of the game can step around as does Greb. He dopes it that he can easily outpoint the champion in a limited fight.

For a time Greb acted as a sparring partner to Dempsey prior to his last bout with Billy Miske. Rumor has it that Greb made the champion look foolish.

Perhaps that is why Greb has no fear of Dempsey, despite the many physical advantages held by the champion.

So, after all, a bout between Dempsey and Greb wouldn't be such a onesided affair. Certain one Harry Greb doesn't think so.

PROMISING ROOKIE

With the exception of Fred Marberry, the regular members of the Washington pitching staff are all over 30 years of age.

These veterans are going fine for Manager Harris this year but it is a cinch that some of them will soon start to slip.

No doubt Manager Harris and President Griffith realize that within a few years the club must be rebuilt and are laying plans along those lines.

In the south I noted a very likely looking young pitcher by the name of Kelly with the club. In the spring series with the Giants he pitched fine ball.

However, he showed a lack of experience, and, as Washington is fighting to repeat in the American League, it was impossible to experiment with the young man.

He was sent to the New Orleans club of the Southern League for more seasoning. The other day I noticed that he had won his tenth straight.

* * *

It looks as if young Mr. Kelly would play a prominent part in the rebuilding of the Nationals when that time comes.

Some Teams Do Not Fear Stanley Harris' Veterans

New York, July 29.—AP—Other teams in the American league are from Missouri when facing Stanley Harris and his mound veterans.

In an interview recently he told of his reliance in the men who had weathered season after season of baseball strife.

Possibly this interview did not reach the ears of the White Sox. Anyway they had to be shown, for yesterday the great Walter Johnson was forced to retire in the sixth inning of the first game and Tom Zachary left suddenly in the second, Chicago winning both, 10 to 5 and 6 to 2.

Women's Championship Golf Play Starts Today

Kenosha, Wis., July 29.—AP—Match play in the championship flight in the 1925 women's state golf tournament got underway here at 9 o'clock this morning when Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, defending champion, teed off with Mrs. Jack Blakeslee, Kenosha. In the next group was Miss Frances Hadfield, Blue Mound, who had low medal score in the qualifying round Monday with an 82 Women's par for the course, with Mrs. Eugene Lawton, Racine. All the favorites were expected to survive the first test.

BAMBINO BACK INTO OLD FORM WITH HOME RUN

Philadelphia's youthful Athletics though defeated by Detroit 4 to 3, gained a half game more leeway in the leadership.

Babe Ruth was himself once again, poling a home run that scored a run ahead and issuing a single that scored another. He then closed the contest with a sensational catch of a foul fly as it entered the pavilion seats. Under such conditions the Browns accepted a beating from the Yankees 6 to 2.

Knock Out Four Pitchers

Cleveland treated four Red Sox pitchers unmercifully, registering 21 hits for a 16 to 7 victory.

Meusel Gets Two Homers

McGraw's Giants made a triumphal entry into the west with two homers by Irish Meusel and one each by Lindstrom Gowdy and Bentley. Bentley also hurled in exceptional form, allowing Rabbit's Cubs only five hits, and won, 10 to 3.

Braves Again Downed

But Pittsburgh again downed the Braves and remained a game and a half in the van in the race. Bespectacled Lee Meadows gained a five to 1 triumph.

Brooklyn, 12; Cardinals, 9

Brooklyn piled up eleven runs in the last four innings to overcome an early Cardinal lead, giving Burleigh Grimes a conquest 12 to 9, while the Cuban, Luque, scored the only shutout of the day, Cincinnati beating Philadelphia 3 to 0, he gave five hits.

Brews Lose in 11 Innings

In the American association a 14 inning battle between the Brewers and St. Paul ended when a burning hopper passed the outstretched paws of Alec McCarthy, giving the Minnesotans a 5-4 win.

Louisville, 5; Toledo, 1

Louisville defeated Toledo at Louisville 5 to 1 in the second game of their series.

Kansas City, 7; Minneapolis, 5

Kansas City pounded Minneapolis pitchers for 16 hits and won Tuesday's game at Kansas City, 7 to 5.

Indianapolis, 3; Columbus, 2

Indianapolis made it two straight from Columbus here Tuesday afternoon by winning the second game of the series by a score of 3 to 2.

Sid Terris Awarded Win; Sangor Loses

New York—Sid Terris was awarded the judges' decision over Charley O'Connell of Cleveland after their 12-round encounter Monday night at the Queensboro stadium.

Youngstown, Ohio—The scheduled 12-round bout here Monday night between Joey Sangor, Milwaukee featherweight contender, and Rosy Stoy, Lancaster, Pa., southpaw, came to a sudden finish in the ninth round when Sangor slipped through a hole in the ring and fractured his right ankle. He was unable to continue and the contest was awarded to Stoy on a technical knockout. However, it was rather an empty victory for Stoy as Sangor was enjoying a marked edge in the furious milling when the accident happened, and from all indications Sangor would have won.

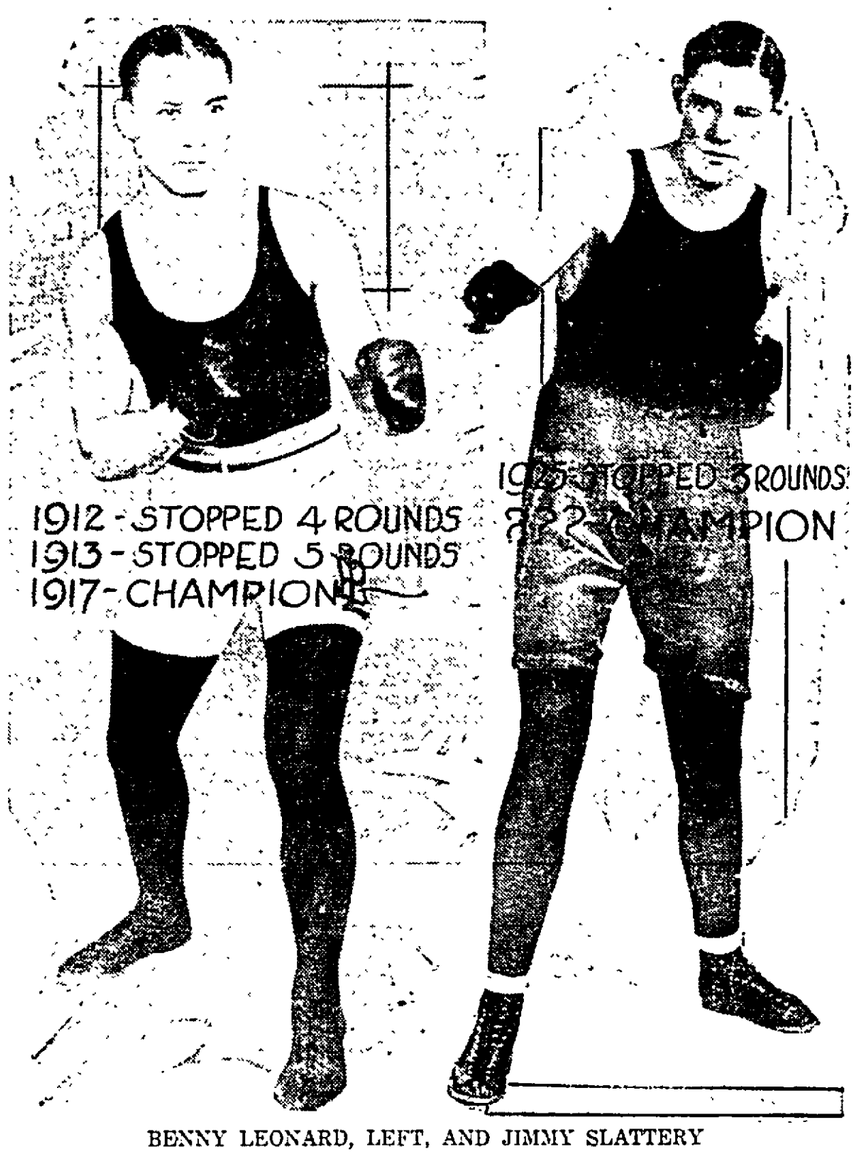
Think Young Fitzsimmons Next Light-Heavy Champ

New York, July 29.—AP—Reports are current here that young Bob Fitzsimmons, son of the former champion, and himself holder of a string of twelve straight knockouts, will be the next opponent of the American light heavyweight champion, Gene Tunney, in a bout to be fought in San Francisco in September.

Slattery May Come Back



BENNY LEONARD, LEFT, AND JIMMY SLATTERY

Don't toss Jimmy Slattery's pugilistic aspirations into the brush heap just because of the Shade beating. Others have been stopped early in their careers only to become champions later on, among them Benny Leonard. Slattery is quite apt to emulate some of these boys by staging a real comeback.

Jim Slattery's Ring Future Is Subject Much Discussed

BY JOE WILLIAMS

New York, July 29—That part of the world which is interested in the scientific cultivation of cauliflowers is asking, "What will Jimmy Slattery do now?"

Jimmy Slattery, you may recall is the young man from Buffalo, who in a moment of youthful indiscretion accepted a knuckling engagement with the somewhat shopworn Dave Shade and was knocked completely stupid in the ensuing head-on collision.

Will the knockout make or break this young 165-pounder whose rapid rise formed the year's most colorful chapter in boxing

The answer is entirely up to Mr. Slattery himself. A knockout is just a knockout. Either you get over it or you don't. The effect on your physical makeup is never lasting. On your mental equipage it sometimes is.

Before Shade cracked him on the Van Dyke, Slattery's knowledge of the konckout was purely academic and impersonal. It was, like Yuletide remembrances, something better to give than receive.

It remains to be seen if Slattery can forget that there is power enough in any human fist to send a man's senses tumbling from his brain.

Other fighters have been knocked out only to come on in subsequent tests and gain greater honors.

The classic example of the ring is Benny Leonard, who was stopped twice before winning the title, first by Joe Shugrue in four rounds, and next by Frankie Fleming in five.

Three years later Leonard was knocking out Freddie Welsh in nine rounds and winning the lightweight championship.

Those knockouts meant just one thing, and one important thing: they meant that a glaring weakness existed in his system of defense. Leonard applied himself to the drab business of perfecting his defense, and came on to win the most valuable title outside of the heavyweight ranks.

It is entirely possible the Shade upheaval will serve as a similar object lesson for Slattery, who is, according to all accounts, an even greater prospect at the moment than was Leonard at a corresponding stage.

Oldtimers at the ringside, however, did not like the way Slattery took his lacing from Shade. They thought they saw in him the tell-tale mark of the front runner. "The boy looks great when out in front, but bad when he stops one," they whispered.

This can very easily be a fatal handicap. If Slattery doesn't relish punishment he isn't going to get very far. You must take a certain amount of it in this primitive form of sport.

The world wondered what Dempsey would do when the time came for him to take one. He showed them in the Firpo fight. He took a terrific one and came back for more. That's the stuff of which champions are made.

BALL PLAYERS PLAN HUNTING TRIPS

There is nothing like a hunting trip to keep a man in fine fettle. That goes for business man and professional athlete alike.

Walter Johnson, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, Stanley Coveleskie, Eddie Collins and many other diamond luminaries of the day give unstinted credit to hunting trips keeping them at the top of their game.

In October George Sisler, Bob Shawkey, Eddie Collins, Joe Bush and Fred Hofmann are going on a moose and deer hunt on the headwaters of the Tobique river, in the province of New Brunswick. This will be the first real big game hunt for George. The others are old hands.

Tris Speaker and Charley Jamieson are going duck hunting and muskellunge fishing at Rice Lake, Ont. This will be followed with a migratory bird shoot on the gulf of Mexico by "Spoke" and by "Jamie" with a deer hunt in New Jersey. Pitcher Sherry Smith will hunt birds in Georgia and wild turkey in Florida.

Herb Pennock is the owner of a fox ranch just out of Fredericton, N. B. He and Bob Meusel will visit the ranch at the close of the season and then hike back in the deer and moose country. Fred Merkle and Miller Huggins will put in the winter fishing and hunting in Florida.

Bobby Veach has hunted the last six years with John Turnbull, sheriff of Luce county, Mich. He and the sheriff will again hunt deer and grouse in the northern peninsula wilds of that state.

Stanley Coveleskie will join "Smoky" Joe Wood on their annual deer hunt in northeastern Pennsylvania. This will be followed by a bear hunt in Potter county, Pa.

Roger Peckinpaugh is going bear and deer hunting at Crowe Lake, Ont. He and Aaron Ward have hunted up there with considerable success, getting both bear and bucks. Muddy Ruel keeps in trim hunting quail in Missouri. Joe Judge and Sam Rice will hunt ducks along the Potomac.

"Goose Goslin and "Dutch" Reuther keep in shape by hunting the eastern shores and marshes. "Goose" at Barnegat Bay and "Dutch" at the Carolina feeding grounds.

"Curly" Ogden hunts mule-deer in the Sierras and Fred Marberry works his dogs on Texas quail.

Grange Quits Iceman Job For Studies

Urbana, Ill.—Harold E. (Red) Grange, captain-elect of the University of Illinois football team and All-American halfback for the last two years, arrived in town Monday from Wheaton, where he has been working as an iceman.

Grange has temporarily abandoned his ice job and will spend about a week here on the campus making up some scholastic work. He probably will take a special examination to make up a failure of the last semester and thus become eligible for football.

Third Scalp Hung on Belt of Cleaners

Led by their tall, blond, fast-twirling pitching ace, Voskamp, Pratt's Daily Cleaners added another scalp to their string last evening, cleaning up the Consolidated Mill office "Soups" in a fast indoor baseball game marked by much heavy slugging and frequent errors at the high school diamond, 12 to 5.

Scoring was started in the first inning when Barrett for the Soups chopped out a fast liner which was muffed in the infield. Stealing second, he was brought in by another safe hit. With two men on, however, Voskamp for the Cleaners tightened down and one-twoed the next two batsmen.

The Cleaners also did some slugging on their own hook in the first. With Plenke on base, Gaulke drove out a homer which would have meant two runs had Plenke not been struck by the ball and put out while running bases. Krumrei, fast-moving giant center-fielder, also brought in a tally.

Scoring was started again in the third inning when the Soups brought in one, and the Cleaners three. Two each were scored in the fourth. The Cleaners got another in the fifth, and the Soups one more in the eighth. An eighth-inning let down by Millard, mill office pitcher, resulted in a string of hits by the Cleaners which netted four more runs and put the game in the refrigerator for them. Voskamp one-two-threed three mill office batsmen in the first of the ninth, and the game ended, 12 to 5.

Bunde caught Voskamp for the winners, filling the place left vacant by Punk McGlynn's removal to the Prairie chicken state.

This win marked the third straight for the Cleaners, who maintained their 1000 per cent rating.

The lineups were:

Soups: Westby, Barrett, Eberhardt, Heger, Pribbineau, Clapp, Millard, Mosher, and Franson.

Cleaners: Plenke, Gaulke, Krumrei, Voskamp, Pratt, Kelly, Bunde, Omholt and Fey.

BASE BALL SIMPLIFIED by BILLY EVANS

In determining an interference play, is the umpire ever guided by whether he regarded the mixup in tentional or accidental?

Interference plays are always questions of judgment. What one umpire would regard as an interference play might possibly be overlooked by another official.

Interference plays are always trouble makers. As a result umpires hew strictly to the rules in their interpretation.

No consideration can be given the intent. If the interference is created, a penalty must be inflicted. It cannot be overlooked because in the judgment of the umpire the player who committed the fault did not intend to do so.

In a great many cases the penalty for interference may seem rather severe, since the team that seemed to be responsible for the condition gets the benefit. What is apparently a purely accidental mixup often causes the supposedly innocent player to be penalized.

If umpires gave thought to the intent in interference plays they would constantly be in hot water. For that reason the play alone is judged. If there is interference it must be penalized regardless of the basis for the interference.

ALL-AMERICAN GUARD ON STAFF AT WISCONSIN U

Madison, Wis.—Another valuable assistant was added to the 1925 University of Wisconsin football coaching staff when Coach George Little announced the appointment of Ed-liff R. Slaughter as assistant line coach. Slaughter, Michigan's contribution to the late Walter Camp's 1924 All-American football team, has played guard on the Wolverine eleven for the past three years and was without an equal this past season in the Big Ten conference.

Camp in his choice of Slaughter as an All-American was loud in his praises for the former Maize and Blue guard. The late critic and authority made the following statement: "Slaughter is a veteran guard who has always towered in any line of forwards. A big man, extremely active, he provides the pivotal spot upon which a line plunging attack may rest. He carries his charge through so that he is never shoved back upon his runner. He is never guilty of "knifing" through. Slaughter has unlimited endurance."

Doubtless enough, the words of the former great American Football critic would convince the football world in general that Slaughter was one of the best in the West. Little's choice of Slaughter is only another move by the Badger Director to give Wisconsin the best coaching staff in the West. The combination of Brader and Slaughter should take over the problem of developing a forward wall that should prove effective. Slaughter will report in Madison for regular training start on the 15th of September.

The Badger staff of football mentors at the present reading contains the following: Coach George Little, line coach "Jim" Brader, assistant line coach Slaughter, back field coaches, "Erv" Uteritz, Guy Sundt plus several others, the names of whom will be announced shortly.

A famously good restaurant provides food and service at reasonable cost. Let us send a descriptive folder. Address J. R. Hubbart, Resident Manager, 4300 Clarendon Avenue, Chicago.

Market Reports

New Buying Strengthens Rail Shares

New York, July 29—AP—Renewed buying of the railroad shares, apparently inspired by the publication of statistics showing that freight car loadings crossed the million mark for the first time this year in the week ended July 18, featured the opening of today's stock market. Initial gains of a point or so were recorded by Southern Railway, Norfolk and Western and "Katy" common, while Western Pacific preferred and Atlantic Coast Line mounted to new high levels for the year. DuPont opened 2 points higher at the record top of 191 1-2.

Steel Dividend Discounted

Buying of the industrials centered largely in the specialities with professional traders showing a disposition to take profits on the bulges. U. S. Steel common opened 1-8 higher at 120 1-4, indicating that the quarterly earnings report issued after the close yesterday had been fairly well discounted. Otis Steel preferred soared five points to a new peak at 88 and American Can moved up nearly 3 1-2 points in the first half hour to a record top at 212 7-8. New 1925 high records also were established by International Combustion Engineering, Foundation company, Fisher Body, United Drug, Remington Typewriter, Norfolk and Southern, Case Threshing Machine, Spicer Mfg., and Orpheum Circuit. S. S. Kresge soared 10 points to 490. North American, company and American Radiator were heavy on realizing. Heavyness of Danish Kroner, which broke 37 points to 22.12 cents on profit taking, featured the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady at 4.85 1-2 and French francs at 473 1-2 cents.

Price Course Irregular

Selling for both accounts reached substantial proportions around the end of the first hour and returned the course of prices decidedly irregular. Net losses of 2 to 4 points were recorded by such recent strong spots as Montgomery Ward, Famous Players, Woolworth, Mack Truck, Pierce Arrow preferred and Household Products. Rubber fell back in sympathy with the lowering of crude prices, U. S. Rubber common declining more than two points. Bullish operations persisted in other parts of the list and the market was again headed upward around midday. Brown Shoe extended its gain to 4 1-2 points touching a new top at 113, and Ward Baking B crossed 70 to a new peak, while Pacific Gas and Electric, International Telephone and Endicott Johnson, White Motor, Remington Typewriter, Moon Motors and Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing sold 2 to 3 1-2 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Call money opened unchanged at 4 per cent.

Close Irregular

The closing was irregular. Attempts to bring about a resumption of the main advance encountered further profit taking in the late trading. Ward Baking B pushed forward to a new top above 73 but the motors, sugars and rubbers were heavy. The day's sales aggregating 1,500,000 shares.

Wheat Prices Better; Corn Is Irregular

Chicago, July 29—Possibilities of easy Canadian competition cast a shadow today on the wheat market here, and prices for all deliveries except July had a downward slant in the late dealings. According to one authority, if the Canadian harvest starts in ten days, as some advices indicate, it will mean that Manitoba wheat will be available for export from Montreal by the last of September, a time equivalent to shipments from the Gulf of Mexico by September 15. Wheat closed unsettled, 1 1-4c net lower to 2 7-8 cents advance, September 1.50 3-4 to 1.51 and December 1.52 1-8 to 1.52 3-8.

Chicago, July 29—AP—Wheat averaged higher in price today after a sag at the first start. Initial declines were associated with relative weakness of values at Liverpool. On the other hand the fact that the domestic movement of winter wheat thus far fails to show any important accumulation at primary points had a noticeable bullish influence. Chicago opening quotations, unchanged to 3-4c. lower.

September 1.51 to 1.51 1-2 and December 1.53 to 1.53 1-8, were followed by a slight further drop and then by an upturn that carried September to 1.52 1-4 and December to 1.54.

Subsequently, profit-taking on the part of yesterday's buyers together with bearish Canadian crop reports, led to declines for most months. Active milling demand, however, helped to give sustained strength to the July price.

Corn was irregular, with deferred deliveries easy but with July showing strength. After opening at 3-8c decline to 1-8 cent advance, September 1.06 3-4, the range widened between July and other months, December and May in particular.

Reports of rain in parts of Nebraska and Kansas tended to weaken the market later. Corn closed unsettled 1-8 to 1 1-8 net lower; September 1.06 to 106 1-8.

Hedging sales tended to hold the oats market down. Starting at 1-8c lower to shade advance, September 43 1-2 to 43 3-4 cents, the market later underwent a little decline all around.

Provisions were firm, sympathizing with the action of hog values.

He Is Looking 'Em Over Again

"Eight years of stomach and liver trouble reduced me to a walking skeleton. My skin was dried up and as yellow as a twenty-dollar gold piece. I was filled with gas and had severe pains in my right side. I could not think and had lost all ambition to do anything. Doctor's medicine did not touch me. My cousin advised Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which snatched me from the grave. I have gained sixty pounds, eat like a hired man and am looking 'em over again." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—Adv.

SPARKS CIRCUS IN CITY TODAY

L'ORA, OPERATIC SPECTACLE WITH 300 PARTICIPANTS, AND MIACAHUA, WIRE WALKER, ARE HEADLINERS

When the vibrant notes of circus strains played in real circus tempo greeted the gathering multitudes this morning there remained no doubt in anyone's mind that today is circus day in Wisconsin Rapids. Everybody noted the parade an exceptional one from all points of view, in fact it just whetted one's appetite for the afternoon's performance under the "big-top" at Corcoran's field one block southeast of Eighth street on Chestnut street.

After viewing a splendid collection of animals including the much advertised baby tigers and cub lions, "Prince", tiger mascot of Princeton university and the original "Tarzan of the Apes," lions of motion picture fame, attention is naturally drawn to the main tent where the performance is properly started with an operatic fantasy that for originality is far from the beaten path of the ordinary circus spectacle. L'Ora is the title and it was originally written and produced by J. H. Del Vecchio, noted composer, and is especially rich in costuming and accoutrements.

Animals Rule Show

Trained animals, both wild and domestic predominate in the program proper, and they include horses, tigers, polar bears, llamas, pigs, two herds of elephants and the famous Capt. Tiebor, tope-walking seals—even the very domestic chicken and goose are included. Interspersed were the horse displays all of which were superior to any seen here in years. This circus boasts of the largest group of trained horses in the world and livened up to it for the sixteen "rotation" group worked with the clock-like precision of trained soldiers. Then there were fancy gaited animals that execute every conceivable gait known to the horse-world, football playing horses, posing horses and in the Fox-Hunt a number of exceptional high and broad jumpers were introduced.

The arenic displays featured Miacahua, sensational Brazilian lady high wire artist and late headliner of the New York Hippodrome. Miacahua uses neither parasol nor balancing pole and is unquestionably the peer of all high wire artists; the famous Sie Tahar troupe of Algerian acrobats featuring Maryma, world's greatest lady acrobat and also a late Hippodrome feature; the great Oranto troupe of double high perch and balancing marvels; the Yumada troupe of Nipponese acrobats featuring Kaichi, who walks up a flight of stairs on his head and Sakata, whose rapid high wire slide from the top of the tent is a real "thriller," and the famous Riding Rooneys, equestrian stars extraordinary.

There's a small army of funmakers with the Sparks Circus, including such notables as Paul Wenzel, Pete Mardo and the Mardo Trio, Charley Fortuna, Abie Goldstein, Tommy Vanderford, Harvey Spaulding, Charley Kline, Harry Davenport and a half a score more so bring along your pent-up laughs. An added feature of the concert is "Bull-Dog" Martin, Champion Middle-Weight wrestler of the South, who meets all challengers and the Australian O'Sheas, sensational bull-whip manipulators. Tonite's performance begins at 8 with the doors opening at 7 during which period Jack Phillips' Concert Band will render a musical program.

FAR WEST HURDLER STARS AT CHICAGO

Stanford University uncovered a stellar hurdler in Leitner at the National College track and field meet at Chicago the other day. Leitner won the 120-yard high sticks and came in a close second in the low barriers. In the shorter event he hung up a mark of 14 2-5 seconds, exceptionally fast time.

Tribune Letter Box Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin

"THE REVOLT AGAINST CIVILIZATION"

To the Editor:

It might seem hard at first thought to trace a direct connection between a Scopes trial, the charges of heresy brought against prominent ministers, the attempts to censor the press and pulpit, the growth of the Ku Klux Klan and other similar organizations, refusal of America to recognize, in a diplomatic way the present regime in Russia the election of mediocre men to high public office, prohibition amendments and other ably enforced laws, and the overcrowded conditions in American colleges and universities. But all these things, and many other deplorable facts of modern life are closely connected.

A careful reading of Lothrop Stoddard's book, "The Revolt Against Civilization," will reveal this connection quite clearly to the thinking mind. A bit of analytical writing would show how this connection is traced by the same book, to even the unthinking and mere or less unconcerned.

I would recommend that those who are concerned about the future of civilization read that book.

DAWES TO VISIT JUNEAU COUNTY

VICE-PRESIDENT WILL RETURN TO HOME OF FATHER AND GRANDFATHER FOR MAUSTON FAIR, AUGUST 25 TO 28

Mauston, Wis.—J. T. Hanson of this city received a personal letter recently from Vice President Charles G. Dawes stating that he would come to Mauston on one of the days during which the annual Juneau County Fair is being held. The Fair dates are August 25, 26, 27 and 28.

The letter was in reply to one sent the Vice President by Mr. Hanson inviting him to attend the fair during which a historical pageant will be held showing events of the early days of the county's history.

His grandfather, Henry Dawes, came here from Ohio during the early days of the settlement, built, a home at the top of Keegan's hill where Will Shelton now lives, and lived there the balance of his life. He is buried in Evergreen cemetery four miles south of this city. His father, General Rufus R. Dawes, lived here during that period and at the outbreak of the Civil War organized Company K of the Sixth Wisconsin Volunteers which he commanded.

The invitation was extended the vice president by J. T. Hanson in behalf of the Juneau County Agricultural Association which is one of the oldest agricultural societies in Wisconsin. Mr. Hanson is the only one living who was associated with Henry Dawes and General Rufus R. Dawes during their residence here in the building of their home and the work of getting the farm land ready for cultivation. There are however, many still here who knew them intimately during those days and there are also several members of General Rufus R. Dawes' old regiment still in the county.

A FRIENDLY SUGGESTION

Regarding Family Monuments:

A monument stands for all time, a permanent reminder of good or bad taste, as the case may be. Why, then, select it carelessly, without due forethought or experienced advice? Our twenty-five years experience in the monumental business is your assurance that memorials purchased from us are the newest designs and of the best material and workmanship that can be had.

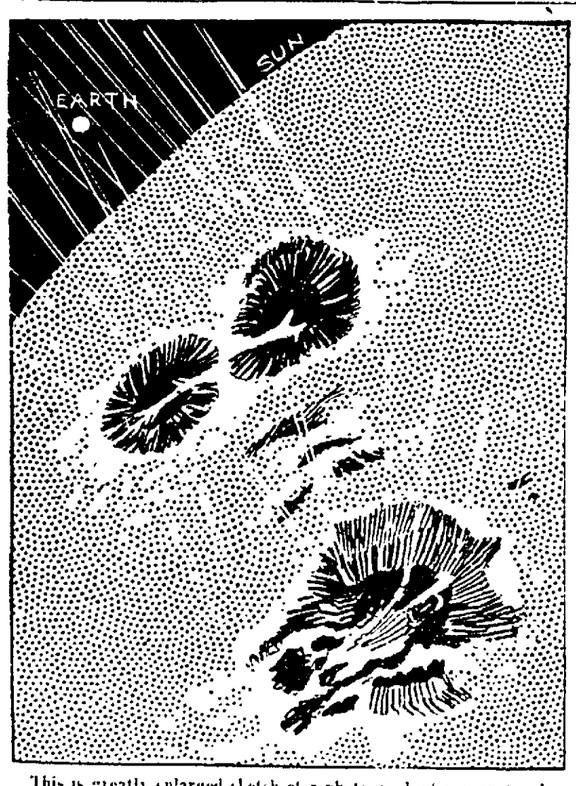
THE LAST FRONTIER

BY David Dietz



This is greatly enlarged sketch of a photograph of sun spots, showing streams of electrons being hurled into space. Dr. Huntington believes that through some such radiations as these the different stars have an effect on the amount of the sun's heat that reaches the earth.

By DAVID DIETZ

The world will be in the grip of another great ice age or glacial epoch in 20,000 years.

That is the prediction of Ellsworth Huntington, famed geographer, explorer, and research associate of Yale University.

Dr. Huntington has recently been conducting investigation to find out if daily variations in the sun's output of energy might not be caused by the positions of the planets.

Then, it occurred to him that long period variations in the sun might be caused by the positions of the stars.

Dr. Huntington believes that the planets influence the sun by reflecting part of the sun's electrical radiations back into the sun. The stars, of course, would affect the sun by the influence of their own radiations, for the stars send out light, heat and electrical radiations just as our own sun does.

Scientists agree that one of the most likely causes of a glacial age would be a falling off in the energy radiated by the sun.

Such a falling off might take place if the sun were subjected to the bombardment of electrical rays from near stars, Dr. Huntington believes.

Accordingly he asked two well known astronomers, Dr. Schlesinger of Yale and Dr. Shapley of Harvard, to help him compute the courses of the nearest 38 stars for the last 70,000 years and the coming 70,000 years.

The calculations show that five of these stars came close to our sun 25,000 years ago. That was the time when the last ice age took place.

The calculations show further that seven of the stars will reach their closest positions to our sun sometime between 17,000 and 34,000 years in the future.

That is why Dr. Huntington predicts another ice age in 20,000 years.

Major P. S. Fowler, in a lecture to the London Zoological Society, reported that a European catfish in the private aquarium of the Duke of Bedford is now 50 years old.

This, however, is believed to be an unusual age for a fish.

Major Fowler gave these figures as average ages: carp, 13 years, gold fish, 12, brown trout, 6, herring, 4, and salmon, 3.
